

From: kellyschokmiller@centurytel.net
Sent: Thursday, April 21, 2011 9:13 AM
To: DisruptiveTrading <DisruptiveTrading@CFTC.gov>
Subject: Fwd: oil speculators

----- Forwarded message from -----

Date: Thu, 21 Apr 2011 08:58:06 -0400
From: kellyschokmiller@centurytel.net
Reply-To: kellyschokmiller@centurytel.net
Subject: oil speculators
To: regulations.gov@localhost

I am curious to know if the cftc has any plans for setting higher margin requirements on oil trades to help alleviate the problem with rising gas prices due to speculation. From what I have read the Dodd-Frank bill will authorize the CFTC to call for higher margin requirements in order to protect the financial integrity of the futures trading markets. I have read of other ideas to help alleviate the rising price of gas such as a windfall profits tax on commodity funds, hedge funds and oil companies, cap how many futures and related swaps contracts any one company can control, open and publicly question the traders, managers and players in the markets so we can see their faces, whose money are they managing? Thank you, Kelly Schokmiller email kellyschokmiller@centurytel.net

----- End forwarded message -----